Question: 1

A vSAN cluster in a VCF Workload Domain must tolerate 1 host failure using RAID-1. What should be configured in the storage policy?

- A. Failures To Tolerate = 0
- B. Failures To Tolerate = 1
- C. Stripe Width = 2
- D. Object Space Reservation = 100%

Answer: B

Explanation:

RAID-1 with FTT=1 ensures one host failure tolerance. vSAN mirrors objects across hosts to maintain availability during failure scenarios.

Question: 2

A stretched vSAN cluster requires automatic failover between sites. Which component is mandatory?

- A. vSphere Replication
- B. Witness Host
- C. NSX Edge
- D. Avi Load Balancer

Answer: B

Explanation:

A Witness Host maintains quorum in stretched clusters. It prevents split-brain conditions during site failures.

Question: 3

Cross-cluster capacity sharing in vSAN primarily helps to:

- A. Enable encrypted backups
- B. Balance storage utilization across clusters
- C. Increase CPU performance
- D. Reduce memory overhead

Answer: B

Explanation:

Cross-cluster capacity sharing allows multiple clusters to consume storage from a common datastore, optimizing utilization.

Question: 4

When enabling vSAN Encryption, what is required?

- A. External KMS server
- B. NSX Manager
- C. Avi Controller
- D. vSphere Lifecycle Manager

Answer: A

Explanation:

vSAN encryption requires integration with a Key Management Server (KMS) for key generation and management.

Question: 5

A VM is not compliant with its storage policy. What should be checked first?

- A. Datastore capacity
- B. Policy rules vs cluster capabilities
- C. vCenter license
- D. NSX overlay status

Answer: B

Explanation:

Storage policy compliance depends on cluster capabilities. Mismatched FTT or encryption rules cause non-compliance.
